

Open Test — Employee FAQ

Everything you need to know before you get started

Q1. What is Acteamity?

Acteamity is a new activity based fitness compensation platform that tracks your daily physical activity and converts it into tokens that your employer will exchange for monetary compensation.

Q2. Why have I received an invitation to join Acteamity?

Because your employer decided to join the Open Test of the platform and will compensate your physical activity based on results during the test period.

Q3. What's in it for me?

During the Open Test you can use the platform to record your physical activity and report back to your employer. Your generated tokens will be exchanged for real money based on a fixed exchange rate either monthly or at the end of the test period.

Q4. What's in it for my employer?

Your employer decided to join the platform to boost employee productivity and morale and reduce health-related absenteeism in the company. Research shows that use of programs like Acteamity makes employees healthier and more productive, and this transforms into financial benefits and competitive advantage for the company.

Q5. Is it free?

Yes, our platform is free for all employees, no upfront costs or subscriptions are required.

Q6. Does it share my personal data with the employer?

Our platform does not require any personal data beyond what has already been shared with your employer. Acteamity collects physical activity data and transforms it into generalized tokens. Your employer will not get details on your fitness activity unless you grant this permission as part of a corporate competition or other event.

Q7. Why is it an Open Test?

We are a startup company and our platform is at the beginning of its journey. We had several internal and external tests already, and now we have opened it to everyone in the market to test scalability, improve user experience and platform stability. We will ask for your feedback on using the app, functionality you would like us to add, and overall experience with Acteamity to improve the platform and make it more commercially attractive.
